Letter from SANTA

My elves have been telling me there are many children around the world who are a little worried and confused lately. Lots of changes daily can get us all scared. Children are worried that schools are closed and you can't go out to play with your friends or visit some of your family.

Well you probably heard grown up's talk about a virus. This virus is not good and can make people very sick so we need to stop it from spreading. The best way to do this is to stay at least 6 feet apart from each other for a little while.

The doctor's, nurses and scientists are our SUPER HEROES. They are helping the sick to feel better and are working very hard to find new medicine to stop more people from catching the virus. We are all in this together as their helpers. We get to protect everyone by washing our hands a lot, staying at least 6 feet apart from each other and spread kindness instead of germs. If we all work together and do our part everything will be okay and things will get back to normal again.

If you are missing someone you love or your friends give them a call. Ask them how they are and tell them how well you are doing. I bet hearing from you will brighten their day and make them feel very happy. That's your Super Power. Help your grown-ups around the house. Listen to them always and tidy away toys. Listening is so very important and this is why our elves have such great big ears!

It may seem strange to do things differently for a while right now, so let's think of this as a big new adventure. Remember how great it felt at Christmas when you played games with your family, watched movies and laughed a lot together, We get to do that all over again ... just a little bit longer this time.

Everyone here at the North Pole is fine. Elves and our reindeer can't catch the virus. Mrs. Claus and I are protected as well. All our elves right now are busy in Elf School and are having a lot of fun designing new toys. The reindeer have been having a long winter's nap since their magical journey on Christmas Eve. It will be time soon to start their training again.

Okay children, it's time to start spreading your kindness. Let's give everyone a wave and remember to stay at least 6 feet away from each other. Watch for the huge big smile appear on their faces. This will make you smile as well. Remember to keep washing your hands.
